Cain, Bruce lock horns again

by Jeff Nazzaro
Wilmington Selectman Robert Cain made open allegations at Monday's selectmen's meeting that members of the board violated the open meeting laws.

"It appeared to me that the board of selectmen were meeting prior to the [July 14 special meeting]...if that's the case I expect that the [board] members would know that's in violation of the open meeting law...If we're gonna be in violation of the law I would think that we could share that information [with the public]."

Cain stated during Monday's selectmen's meeting.

Chairman Chester Bruce rebutted Cain's suggestion with the following statement: "To my knowledge at no one time did the majority of this board have a meeting in regards to the question."

"I think that if any two members [of the board] get together to discuss something it's fine. I think we went over this just recently, the town manager, myself and the town attorney in regards to clarification on a subcommittee of the board of selectmen and I think the language is explicit that basically, if there are two [members of the board] they consist of the majority [of the board] and they cannot discuss [town business] unless it's at an open meeting."

Cain then revealed that the open meeting law had been violated by a meeting of Selectmen Gerald Duggan and Diane Allan held to discuss information requested from the water and sewer department at the selectmen's July 14 special meeting.

Chairman Bruce previously appointed a subcommittee of Duggan and Allan to look into materials provided by the water and sewer department via Town Manager Michael Cair.

It was decided at Monday's meeting that any future meetings of the selectmen's subcommittee will be open to the public, with dates and times to be posted in the town hall.

Video cassettes seized

As a result of a three month investigation by the Wilmington Police Department Criminal Bureau, 493 pirated video cassettes were seized from Gerald Benullo, owner of Jerry's Video Adventure at 668 Main St., Wilmington, Suite 9 in the Webber Terrace Plaza. Pirated video tapes are tapes that have been copied illegally by underground video recording labs, then sold to video rental stores at a fraction of their cost.

The Police Department had received several complaints alleging the rental of pirated tapes at Jerry's Video Adventure and as a result, opened an investigation. That led to the execution of a search warrant at the local video store.

Aiding in the investigation were agents from the Motion Picture Association of America; the majority of whom are retired FBI agents. This company is hired by the leading motion picture producers to aid in safeguarding their copyrights. Nationally pirated video tapes cost the industry hundreds of millions of dollars a year in lost revenues.

This investigation was conducted at the direction of Chief Stewart by Detective Thomas Miller, aided during the execution of the search warrant by Detective Sgt. Mark Jepson, Detective Pat King, Detective Mike Begonis and six agents from the Motion Picture Association of America.

At press time, Jerry's Video was closed for business.

Man takes own life

by Jeff Nazzaro
A 71-year-old Wilmington man took his own life in Wildwood Cemetery Monday morning.

Wilmington Police confirmed the victim as Charles A. Landry, 71, of Middlesex Avenue.

Paula O'Brien Famolare of Harris Street witnessed the suicide along with cemetery employee Ed Regione.

Famolare was watering flowers on her mother's grave at approximately 9:30 a.m. Monday morning when she saw a man shoot himself in the head with a handgun.

Regione ran over immediately, and with Famolare flagged down another cemetery worker, who called for an ambulance and police. Landry was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Allgrove home to be discussed

After 23 years the Wilmington Board of Appeals will finally hear some arguments about the home at 281 Woburn Street, presently known as the Allgrove home.

It was constructed in the year 1730 by a man named Thomas Evans. Evans had purchased the land from the Harnden family, who owned everything along the west side of Woburn Street, from Salem Street to the Ipswich River.

Tuesday, July 27 the Wilmington Board of Appeals will discuss arguments about one of the oldest homes in Wilmington. Arguments are scheduled to start about 7 p.m.

Layoffs at J.T. Berry

As part of what the Massachusetts Department of Mental Retardation is calling a "slow phase down," J.T. Berry Rehabilitation Center employees have been hit with 23 layoffs from the state agency, according to Public Relations Director Jerry Ryan.

J.T. Berry Rehab Center, the former treatment center for tuberculosis established in North Reading before World War I, was slated for closure by the Governor's Consolidation Commission in 1991.

The Berry Center, which in recent years has served as housing for mentally handicapped citizens, will have its' current residents gradually moved into "community group homes and small group homes in various sites along the North Shore," Ryan said.

MORE CHOICES FOR YOUR 401(k)

More than 16 million Americans are stashing away retirement income in their employers' 401(k) plans that permit them to put aside money on a tax deferred basis and let it grow the same way. Some plans allow for pre-tax and after-tax contributions so employees can generate additional savings. New regulations that will take effect in January but are already being implemented in many plans will give savers more investment options and more opportunities to transfer funds among them. They are to be given at least three different kinds of investment options, receive information about all of them, and have the chance to transfer funds among them at least four times a year. The increased employee participation has benefits for both worker and company. The employee is able to structure the investment mix to one that's appropriate for the individual's age and risk tolerance. The employer, no longer a fiduciary of the funds, is less likely to be liable if the investments turn sour. We think 401(k) plans are terrific! Come discuss your options with the money people at Joyce K. Brisbois, C.P.A. 404 Main St., Suite #1 Wilmington, MA 01887 (508) 658-5034

What has happened to the Wilmington Board of Selectmen? Whatever one's opinion is of past boards, politics took a back seat to the common good and disagreements stayed at the table. However, the current membership of the town's executive committee has been the most political, personal and petty of any board in recent memory.

This board has spent more time on dog hearings and looking for skeletons in non-existent closets than it has addressing the three real issues of the day, which are jobs, jobs and jobs. In fact, one freshman member made a campaign promise to make the economy a number one agenda item, a promise many voters hurt by this economy had grabbed hold of during the election. So much for campaign promises.

Simply put, the current investigation of the water and sewer department by the board of selectmen is the latest and perhaps saddest example of Wilmington politics as usual. Regardless of how one feels about meetings surpassing the witching hour and viewers time being wasted on inane questions about the competence of our town fathers.

The past administration of the water and sewer department would never be held up as an example of good government, and the subsequent consolidation and personnel changes were professional and humane. The fact is, Town Manager Mike Cairns saved the department from extreme embarrassment and possibly greater consequences.

Selectman Bob Cain, who heads the loyal opposition on the board, should be screaming political bloody murder at the prospect of Selectmen Bruce, Dugan, McCoy and Allan obtaining information which members of the board of selectmen should not rightfully ever lay their hands on. Forget the fact that three lives depended on it, but remember that their imperial edict takes personnel records and places them in the hands of the board. It is time for Selectman Cain to take a chapter, just one mind you, from the Shirley Callan book of politics and demand that open meeting law violations be investigated by the district attorney.

As the dean of Wilmington politics, Cain's indignation must be channeled into a productive attempt to return the board of selectmen to its policy setting function and expose personal politics for what it is - petty. Cain might sign-up for the Bob Dole political seminar on how to run good political opposition and succeed as the outvoted minority. For Selectman Cain to gain his rightful place in Wilmington political history, he must exchange his Captain Milk Toast image for that of a take-no-prisoners political fighter.

Politics as usual in Wilmington

For if Cain's not able to take charge, it's going to be a long year for those in search of local statesmanship.

Cain's publicized complaints are more than justified. He was never notified of the now infamous special meeting of July 8, and while the meeting was explosive in and of itself, those in attendance report that the after-meeting fireworks were something to behold. Selectman Cain is justifiably indignant about his treatment at the hands of a board whose combined political experience is half his own.

Add to your notes on this controversy the growing issue of the propriety, or lack thereof, of the special subcommittee. Chairman Chet Bruce appointed Jerry Duggan and Diane Allan to a subcommittee charged with reviewing water and sewer department records. This subcommittee, while having never held a posted meeting, is reported to have met on this issue on numerous occasions. Each meeting was a violation of the state's open meeting law. While Selectman Allan was recently quoted as demanding an open and honest process, a recent subcommittee meeting was canceled after it was learned that the meeting had to be held open to the public.

This whole water and sewer department issue is all about what? It's about personality and politics, and quite possibly the issue of conflict of interest.

The big picture here is that the board's lack of leadership has resulted in a vacuum that is being filled by personal and political retribution. Chairman Chester Bruce has shown a total inability to control the agenda and lead the board in a direction that will serve the best interests of the taxpayers of Wilmington. His preoccupation with appeasing special political interests has paralyzed him to the point where one wonders whether there is anyone in charge of the board.

Tewksbury on the move

by Bill Conlon

Ed Doherty and the Tewksbury Industrial Commission are on the move. Potentially big plans are being made for the town, and the industrial commission is on the cutting edge of enticing businesses into Tewksbury.

The town would benefit greatly by having new businesses move into town. More business means more hotel-motel occupancy (for a gain in the motel-tax revenues), more people visiting means more retail sales at every level, and the town would benefit by increasing the number of businesses paying industrial-sized property taxes.

And what Doherty and Co. have in mind sounds very interesting indeed for Tewksbury. Doherty said he keeps a number of town officials up to date on everything that he negotiates for the town, and the possibilities are growing every day. For example...

When I-93 was built, Tewksbury ignored it. The town could have had off-ramps on I-93, and all of South Street could have been an industrial zone today, but the town rejected the ramps. That old mistake might be corrected, if all goes well. Tewksbury has no significant industrial areas, so the property tax burden is borne by residents, not by big industrial concerns. Industry is needed.

Doherty said that up to three "very nice" restaurants are looking for locations in Tewksbury. That wouldn't hurt.

A community college is eyeing three possible sites in Tewksbury, Doherty said. That wouldn't hurt either.

Wal-Mart and Home Depot are coming. That won't hurt at all.

But the biggest deal of all for Tewksbury involves Interstate 93, the land that abuts it, and a railroad.

Doherty said town officials have been in close contact with U.S. Senators Kerry and Kennedy about building a new set of ramps for Interstate 93. Federal approval is required for the ramps, and the fog on Beacon Hill in Boston is rumored to be even thicker than in Washington, if that's possible.

What is proposed is an off-ramp and on-ramp for Interstate 93. The town owns large parcels of land near the highway, and there is discussion about the Rocco landfill site, which the town is able to take for back taxes. The town really doesn't want to take the Rocco property, however, because liability for the cleaning and capping of the former dump would fall upon Tewksbury, and that is far too expensive for the town. A widely-publicized mention about having an industrial tenant move in, and the new tenant would be required to clean and cap the dump at no cost to the town under terms of the deal, set countless eyebrows aflutter in Tewksbury not long ago. That's one aspect of the proposal.

Industrial properties cannot be accessed through residential areas so no access from South Street could be used, except emergency vehicle access. Rezoning of the I-93 area would be asked at town meeting, but not yet. That's another aspect.

Picture, someday, a business concern in the corner of Tewksbury between Wilmington and Andover (a factory? a domed stadium? a mall?) with access only from the Interstate. No cars or traffic jams in Tewksbury, and the town gains the added property tax revenues. But wait...! There's much more!

Located near the site is an active railroad line, and it's the same line being discussed as a link between Boston and Portland, Maine. Doherty said U.S. Senator George Mitchell of Maine is putting forth legislation to have the federal government fund the new rail improvements. The Boston-to-Maine line passes near the former Pease Air Force Base, now closed and idle, and by Portsmouth, New Hampshire, an active seaport. So, here we have a set of rails connecting Boston with a major airport and a major seaport on its way to Maine, and Tewksbury one site where the rails pass near an Interstate highway. Lots of uncertainties, definitely, but think of the possibilities! Imagine all the businesses that would want to locate to a site with easy access to rail, air, sea and highways!

The value of such a site wouldn't be counted in mere millions.

Interesting, isn't it?

It's possible, it's do-able, and it's good to know there are people like Ed Doherty working on projects of this magnitude. Landing a community college would improve the town, but why not dream? Why not swing for a home run?

Tewksbury deserves the best, and here's the chance to get it.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

The town's reduced revenue should be of no surprise to most of us since a decline in economic growth usually triggers lost revenues.

Past solutions to these problems were for towns to raise taxes and impose user fees. This was a simple solution for town government with no creative thought behind it.

Fortunately, Mass. residents rallied and imposed Prop 2 1/2 guidelines for all cities and towns, this forcing town officials to be creative in dealing with their financial woes.

A recent article in our local newspaper said that a legislative overturn of Prop 2 1/2 may be facing us in the future as a fix for lost revenues.

It is inconceivable that any politician would even murmur the words: Prop 2 1/2 override. The fact is that Wilmington officials have not done a good job in incentivizing industry to settle in our industrial Parks.

Our shrinking industrial base indicates that Wilmington is not responding to its greatest revenue resource. If Wilmington's officials continue to ignore this underlying problem and continue to bet on state aid, it will surely lead us into financial chaos with increased taxes and user fees as a reality.

Korean War remembered

Wilmington remembers those who died

by Jeff Nazzaro

Of the 1,620 soldiers from Massachusetts who died in service of their country in Korea, four came from Wilmington. They are:

- Ronald D. Eaton, Navy Ensign, January 28, 1954. Missing In Action (MIA) 1952.
- Antonio T.J. Gagnon, Private First Class (PFC) Army. Killed in Action (KIA) July 16, 1950.
- Robert C. Pipes, Army Private. Died In Service (DIS) January 20, 1955.
- Arthur M. Starr, Army Corporal. Died of wounds on March 15, 1952.

The people of Wilmington, of Massachusetts and of America and South Korea owe these men a debt of gratitude.

The town of Wilmington has contributed to repaying that debt. It has purchased a brick for the Korean War Memorial of Massachusetts. A brick in honor of those from Wilmington who died in Korea.

"The Forgotten War" in Korea

The Korean War, 1950-1953, is called the "forgotten war" by some, but never by those who fought it.

Though termed a "police action" by the U.S. government, the fighting was very real, very bloody, and the action in Korea was a genuine war.

For those who are too young, and for those who have forgotten, what follows is a history of the Korean War, 1950-1953.

by Bill Conlon

The year was 1950.

The Second World War was over less than five years, the memories of war still fresh, when war erupted again.

At dawn on June 25, 1950, North Korean forces attacked across the 38th Parallel, opening what today is known as the Korean War.

The groundwork for the Korean War was laid over the course of centuries, as other nations did battle in what has been called "the Hermit Kingdom" of Korea. Commodore Perry's "opening" of Japan to the outside world was rejected by the Koreans, where ships were burned and their crews slaughtered.

The most important factor which led to the Korean War, however, was the occupation of Korea by the armed forces of Japan, which came about after the Russo-Japanese War and the obliteration of the Russian Fleet in 1905. Japan occupied the Korean peninsula until the end of the Second World War.

But the fall of Japan in 1945 left a power vacuum, which the Russians filled quickly, to devastating effect.

Josef Stalin made quick work of Korea after the Japanese fell, with Communist cadres into the political and social life of the war-ravaged "Land of the Morning Calm." One of the cadres was Kim Sung Chu, a veteran of the Red Army, who later would take the name of a genuine Korean hero: Kim Il Sung.

The 38th Parallel was picked as an arbitrary line, to separate where the Japanese would surrender to the Americans, and where they would surrender to the Soviets. A force of 100,000 Soviet soldiers entered the country on August 12, 1945, a mere two days before the surrender of Japan, through the common border with Siberia.

The agricultural south of Korea, with 21 million people, depended upon the industrial north during the rare times of peace, but the Soviet landlords quickly cut off the flow of goods and services across the 38th Parallel, and North Korea retreated behind the Iron Curtain. The Soviets in 1945 called for a Joint Commission to study creation of a single, free government for all of Korea, which would take place in 1950. But the Soviets had other things in mind.

The Soviets were instead arming and training the North Koreans for the war that would come.

-- The war begins --

Surprise was the greatest weapon used by North Korea, and the attack took the world by surprise. Troops advanced on the 38th Parallel over a ten day period prior to the attack, and there was a peace proposal by the Soviets to join the two Koreas, in the days just before the war.

The array of military forces was clearly in the North's favor, at the beginning. North Korea could field 135,000 combat troops, while the Southern forces numbered 98,000 Republic of Korea (ROK) troops, of which only 65,000 were located in "combat" units, plus the national police force of 45,000.

The attack began all across the 38th Parallel, with North Korean armor punching gaping holes in the ROK lines, with Soviet T-34 tanks. Three days after the first shot was fired, Seoul, the capital of South Korea, was captured and the South Korean army was on the run.

And it didn't stop there.

North Korean units continued to push south, and on the fourth day of the invasion, the Soviet Union was guilty of perhaps the worst blunder in military history. The USSR did not have its UN ambassador present when the United Nations Security Council voted to commit military forces to the Korean war. A Soviet veto would have overturned the UN decision, but instead free nations lined up to assist South Korea.

The North Koreans continued to roll south, in a four-prong attack, and they came dangerously close to attaining their goal of "uniting" the Korean peninsula. The Americans did not take North Korea's attack seriously, at first, and many felt the conflict would be through in just a few days. Not so. Surrenders and retreats were common, including a number of military embarrassments suffered by American units.

As the enemy troops and tanks pushed south, the defenders were backed up into the city of Pusan, both the best deepwater port in Korea and the point furthest from the fighting. By September, North Korean forces were encircling the city, including Masan and Taegu.

The allied forces were penned up in the Pusan Perimeter, an 80 by 50 mile rectangle, while the rest of the peninsula belonged to the enemy. However, American air power and sea strikes ripped the Communists' supply lines, and the influx of fresh troops into Pusan actually turned the force advantage to the Allies favor.

But UN Supreme Commander General Douglas MacArthur had a plan, which he began forming at the very outset of the fighting. After he overcame considerable reluctance from his superiors, MacArthur was able to pull off the greatest amphibious landing in history, at Inchon.

The western port of Inchon was perhaps the worst possible place in the world for amphibious landings. Tides in the bay ran from 26 to 36 feet, second highest in the world, and broad mud flats combined with a narrow ship channel made it sheer suicide for any ship caught by an outgoing tide. Sea walls around the port promised to make life difficult for the U.S. Marines as well.

The landing at Inchon had to be timed with the phase of the moon, so that the ships would come in on the highest possible tides. The only possible dates were September 15, October 11 or November 3, and the general picked the earliest possible date -- September 15, 1950.

Incredibly, the landing at Inchon was a complete success. The North Koreans dismissed the possibility of a landing due to the natural features and they were caught unawares.

The Inchon landing severed the supply lines serving the Communist forces, which added to an offensive launched from the Pusan pocket, spelled military disaster for the North Koreans. The Allied forces swept in from the sea and up from the southern tip of Korea, and then came the United Nations turn to enjoy chasing down an enemy in full, headlong retreat.

Korean recognition

The Communist retreat turned into a rout, with Seoul returning to Allied hands by September 28, but the Allies didn't bother to stop at the 38th Parallel, despite warnings by the People's Republic of China. The ROK troops and UN forces continued charging north, until all but a few miles of North Korea had been taken, including the capital of Pyongyang, in mid-October, 1950.

-- Enter the Chinese --

The Chinese, however, were not bluffing when they lashed out at the "American war of invasion" against their "peace-loving" neighbor.

By early November, a buildup of Chinese forces was documented and the Chinese moved across the Yalu River separating Manchuria from the peninsula, in huge numbers. The Allies grossly underestimated the Chinese troop movement into North Korea, and the Communists put some 30 full divisions in the field, occupying the strip of North Korea that the Allies hadn't yet taken. MacArthur begged the Joint Chiefs of Staff for permission to destroy the bridges across the Yalu, but was denied permission to touch Chinese territory. The Red Army clashed with UN units, then broke off, and attacked again in strength, at roughly the same time as Gen. MacArthur's "final offensive" to end the war, in November, 1950.

MacArthur and the Allies were stunned by the size and ferocity of the Communist attack, which saw Chinese troops and Soviet supplies, assisted by remnants of the North Korean forces. The North Korean units that were cut off during the UN advance began harassing supply lines, complicating the problems. The Chinese came in waves, putting the Allies to rout.

Worse, winter had begun.

Heroics abounded during the big Chinese push, including the famous battle at the Chosin Reservoir, the "Frozen Chosin" as it came to be called, on December 10. A Marine Division was cut off and trapped near the Chosin Reservoir by 12 Chinese divisions, and their escape became the first-ever retreat in the history of the U.S. Marine Corps.

Then again, once surrounded it is impossible to retreat, so the famous saying that the Marines are "merely attacking in another direction" may indeed be accurate.

The Communist Chinese advance was just as ferocious, and nearly as effective, as the North Koreans' at the start of the war. Seoul fell to the Chinese army on January 4 of 1951, and UN forces recaptured the capital city after heavy fighting on March 14. The Chinese forces advanced beyond the 38th Parallel, and bitter fighting moved the front lines back and forth for months.

Fighting raged on throughout the year and into 1953, while cease fire talks dragged on. The largest of the Chinese Communist offensives of 1953 came on July 13, exactly two weeks before an official cease fire was signed, "ending" the Korean war and establishing the DMZ, or Demilitarized Zone, which is still in place.

The cease fire has been in place in Korea from July 27, 1953 until the present day. No armistice was ever signed, so the Korean War never ended officially. The cease fire has lasted 40 years, and the anniversary will be marked next week. But it is only a cease fire, and not a peace. The Korean War remains "on hold" for now, as it has since the cease fire went into effect.

Historical reference used for this story was "Conflict, The History of the Korean War" by Robert Leicke.

EARRING DYNAMICS ETC.

540 Main St., Tewksbury
(508) 851-8255

REOPENING FRIDAY!

If something sounds too good to be true, it usually is...but, not this time. Welcome to Earring Dynamics Etc.!

This shop is Jennifer Braisted's latest entrepreneurial venture, although she's no stranger to the jewelry business. Ten years ago she owned six shops in Maine.

What's so special about Earrings Dynamics? "Women can come in and afford this stuff," says Jennifer. "I go to New York and do all my own buying, name brand overstocks, odd lots, some one of a kind pieces...really beautiful jewelry." The best part is, she sells everything for 50 to 75 percent below the retail price!

Earring Dynamics sells quality costume jewelry...earrings, bracelets, necklaces, etc. Just arrived from New York City, the "Angels Collection" of porcelain dolls and masks plus the "Wake the Wizard" game.

They also do ear piercing and ear care.

Jennifer is ready to serve you at the new location.

What's next for Jennifer? "Within the next year I'll be franchising Earring Dynamics. It'll take time, and be hard, but if something is too easy, it's not rewarding."

Earring Dynamics is open Monday through Friday, 11-8; Saturday 9-5. They're located at 540 Main St., Rte. 38, Tewksbury; one mile south of Route 495, across from Purity Plaza, next to Sharky's Flooring.

Fiorenza earned hero's return

by Jeff Nazzaro

Al Fiorenza joined the army fresh out of Wilmington High School. Stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas in 1950 as a corporal in the famed 1st Cavalry Infantry Division, Fiorenza received his orders and along with his division, was shipped to Korea in early 1951.

Fiorenza became a Browning automatic rifle (BAR) man, a hand-held light machine gun used by U.S. troops in World War II and Korea and fired either from the hip or from the ground mounted on a bipod.

Fiorenza landed with his division at Inchon and spent roughly the next year and a half entrenched in bitter combat in Korea. He was 19 years old.

Al returned to Wilmington in the middle of 1952 a highly decorated combat veteran. For his efforts in the Korean War he received the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantry Badge (CIB), given for participation in actual infantry combat.

Fiorenza, who has resided in Wilmington since 1946, now runs a successful banquet hall, the Casa di Fior. He has a wife, Paula, six children, Al Jr., Barry, Paul, Lee, Robin and Milana and a stepdaughter, Kristen.

In addition, Fiorenza currently serves on the Massachusetts Korean War Veterans Committee, which has raised over $400,000 towards the completion of the Korean War Memorial in Massachusetts.

Back in Korea, 1951, the future was more than half the world away from Al Fiorenza. Over 11,000 miles from Wilmington, Fiorenza had to contend with a determined enemy and endless hills, each representing a new struggle. Love of his country and an indomitable sense of duty and survival kept Fiorenza going during his extended tour of duty in Korea.

"You had to do your duty for your country," he said, "and the way I felt was if I died, I died for my country because I love my country."

Silver Star

When he first came home from Korea, Al Fiorenza blocked the war from his mind as best he could and concentrated on building his string of successful businesses, stopping later to reflect on everything he had been through as a young BAR man fighting a foreign war.

Forty years later, it is still difficult for Fiorenza to talk about the gunfight on October 5, 1951 that would end with his being awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in combat.

"You don't actually go to win a Silver Star [Medal], it's just something that happens," Fiorenza said with reserve.

What happened was that Fiorenza's company was pinned down under heavy fire from two enemy machine nests on a hill chillingly referred to as "Bloody Baldy."

The only way for the Americans to advance was to eliminate the machine gun nests, and that is what Fiorenza did, single-handedly with grenades and his BAR. His company advanced without loss of life.

"It's the position you're in [at the time] and you're gonna do your duty 'or you're gonna die," Fiorenza plainly stated.

Purple Heart

The Korean War carried an extremely high casualty rate for American soldiers, with 54,000 KIA (killed in action) in three years of fighting (compared to 58,000 KIA in 10 years of combat in Vietnam, for instance).

Positioned on yet another hill later in the war, Fiorenza's company was barraged with high-velocity rocket shells, shrapnel from which hit Fiorenza. On this occasion, he was saved by a rifle, this time in a defensive capacity.

"I had [an M1] rifle beside me that got hit with a piece of shrapnel and was cut in half or I would have been killed," Fiorenza recalls, "Thank God I had that rifle there."

Due to shortages of troops, Fiorenza was patched up by field medics and sent back to the front lines. Later he received the Purple Heart for wounds inflicted during combat.

Fiorenza saved the rifle that saved his life, getting as far as San Francisco with it before the government took it away.

"I wanted [the rifle] for a souvenir. It was of no use to the government, but they wouldn't let me keep it," Fiorenza remembers.

"An intensive war"

In a war with such a heavy casualty rate, Al Fiorenza does not "remember too many people being with me, because the war was so intensive, basically everybody was either killed, wounded, MIA [missing in action], or captured," he recalls.

With constant rotation of troops and the ever-present enemy, one of Fiorenza's best and most trusted friends became who he refers to as his assistant, a Korean member of the Civilian Transportation Corps.

Moon Somboy was in his early teens and carried Fiorenza's bipod, used to mount his BAR, and bandoliers, or belts of ammunition, to be used in the BAR. Fiorenza has since tried, but has not been able to locate Somboy in Korea.

A hero's return

Fiorenza may not agree with all the politics involved in the Korean War, but he is firm in his conviction that "[the United States] did win our [the Korean] war."

Proof of victory for Fiorenza does not come through any cease-fire agreement or a line drawn in the sand, but in the gratitude of the people of South Korea.

Fiorenza returned to Korea in 1983 as guest of the South Korean government and was amazed at the progress made by the people there.

"I was in Seoul, Korea and I couldn't believe the difference. [Seoul] was like a miniature New York City. I remember Seoul going back and forth through the war and I don't remember one or two buildings standing. That's how messed up it was. I couldn't believe how those people in thirty years came from nothing, and did what they did. They're amazing."

So too are Al Fiorenza and the United States soldiers who fought in the Korean War.

Most sacred of all fraternities

by Jeff Nazzaro

Perhaps the most sacred of all fraternities has no predetermined affiliation with Greek letters, temples or rituals. There is no set organization and membership, and this fraternity has no barriers of race, religion, national origin or even gender. In fact, there is only one condition: that the members be veterans of combat.

Those of us who have not fought in combat can never hope to understand what it must be like to engage in war. Combat veterans form a special group of men and women throughout history.

The feeling of pain, commitment and sacrifice can not be found in any book, newspaper, video game, simulation or "war games."

Only those who have taken up arms for their country or their cause and been positioned on the front lines of a military battle zone can understand what is like to be a combat veteran.

But there is a still more reverent group. A solemn, silent fraternity made up of those making the ultimate sacrifice - those who have died in combat for their country. Included among those are the some 54,000 Americans killed in the nearly three years of bloody fighting on the rough terrain of Korea.

The Korean War, officially a United Nations police action, was a very real and full scale war to the men who fought it.

Fought in the Cold War shadow of the Big One, World War II, and buried under the national rifts forged along political and generational lines by the controversial fighting of the war in Vietnam, the Korean War has often been called "The Forgotten War."

But death is no less permanent to the soldiers or painless to the families of those who lost their lives in Korea. For this reason, both casualties and survivors of the Korean War must be remembered for their bravery, loyalty and sacrifice to and for our nation.

July 27, 1993 marks 40 years since the signing at Panmunjom of the Korean armistice which divided the small, Asian nation at the 38th parallel. The anniversary will be memorialized in Boston on that day with the dedication of the Korean War Memorial of Massachusetts at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

The memorial will consist of six columns, each with a bronze plaque listing the names of Massachusetts' soldiers killed in Korea. The monument will be encircled by memorial flags, eight benches and a walkway made up of memorialized bricks.

Korean
statue

The Korean War statue, which will be the centerpiece of the memorial, is nine feet high and will be placed on an 18 inch thick piece of Korean Granite that will be the pedestal. The clay sculpture shown in the photo was used for two molds for casting the bronze statue. Four Korean War Veterans watch as the sculptor, Robert Shure of Skylight Studios in Woburn, completes the sculpture.

Sona's place

Sona Der Manuelian, owner of Sona's Catering in Tewksbury, has three different degrees in food preparation and management from Johnson and Wales University in Providence, RI. Here Sona proudly displays her six different menus. (photo by Jeff Nazzaro).

Sona's offers romantic home cooked dining

by Jeff Nazzaro

In the event the need for a delicious catered dinner poses a question for your next "off-the-clock" endeavor, Sona's Catering, Inc. of Tewksbury, more than likely has the answer.

Owner/president/manager/cook/waitress Sona Der Manuelian is a graduate of Johnson and Wales University, with Associate Degrees in culinary and pastry arts and a Bachelor of Food Service Management Degree.

Der Manuelian, an Armenian-American, began cooking at an early age with her grandmother, from whom she also started collecting recipes.

Sona is particularly proud of her stuffed grape leaves. She wanted to make the middle eastern appetizer once while her parents were on vacation, so she called her grandmother, who had two friends visiting at the time.

"There were three little old Armenian ladies sitting in the kitchen and they gave me the [stuffed grape leaves] recipe from memory, and that's how it has stayed," Der Manuelian recalls.

Sona's Catering can handle everything from dinner for two to a party of 1,000, and anything in between. Der Manuelian will provide everything except liquor, but will send licensed, insured bartenders.

Sona offers seven different menus, each serving a distinct function.

In addition to her dinner for two menu, Sona carries listings for corporate functions, banquets, breakfast and brunch, cocktail parties, barbeques, and an ethnic menu featuring middle eastern, Italian, French and Mexican cuisine.

How does dinner for two in the privacy of your home, cooked, prepared, served and cleaned up by someone else sound? That's what you can expect if you order the "romantic/fun dinner for two" from Sona's Catering.

Der Manuelian, who prepares almost all her food herself, says she "really enjoy[s] doing the dinners for two."

Sona suggests starting with her stuffed mushrooms and Caesar salad, before moving on to the main course of veal marsala with boiled red bliss potatoes and sauteed zucchini and summer squash with her seasonal apple cobbler for dessert. Bon appetit!

A beer drinkers' guide to real beer

Variations on the strange brew

by Bill Conlon

What better way to ease that dusty summer throat than with a beer?

Okay, so beer isn't a good choice to quench a thirst, since the alcohol dehydrates you more than you'll gain by consuming so much fluid, but who cares? On a hot, scorching day, if you had a choice between a cold beer and a garden hose, which would you reach for? Beer! See?

Sadly, the American beer drinker is a dull, uneducated creature.

To most Americans, Budweiser is beer, and the two words mean the same thing. All the others -- Coors, Miller, Schlitz, Carling, Rolling Rock, take your pick -- are simply variations on the theme.

(Now, don't start arguing over the taste of Bud vs. Carling. That isn't the point here. Not at all.)

All of the beers named represent one -- repeat ONE -- style in what is a wide galaxy of malted barley beverages known as beer. If all you drink is Bud, you have no idea what you're missing. For example, the difference between Bud, and Michelob is the quality of the hops used. Nothing else. Identical.

Bud is a lager, which the rest of the world knows as American light lager. (And "light" American beer is insulting!) "Lager" means "age" in German, and lagers are known for mellow flavor. Simply put, they're bland. Blah. Nothing.

Actually, lagers came into vogue in World War Two, when the men went off to war and the womenfolk stayed behind to run the factories. Brewers wanted to sell more beer to these new working ladies, so they pushed the lagers. Gone were the robust brews from yesteryear, full of character and flavor, but they're starting to make a comeback. Real beer is once again appearing on our store shelves, if you have the guts to break out of the Bud fixation.

Here's a breakdown on some of the different, interesting, unusual beers now available:

Ale -- Lots of variety. Ballantine is the best-known U.S. ale, but it's only fair. Instead, try such gems as Samuel Adams Boston Ale, the new Miller Reserve Amber Ale, and my favorite, Harpoon Ale. Most ales are light in color, but the taste is much more interesting than a lager because ale uses different yeast and brewing style. (But not all new ales are wonderful -- Ipswich Ale, made in Massachusetts, has an interesting bottle, and nothing else. Yuck!)

Brown Ale -- Differing from the lighter ales, a brown ale boasts a rich, even nutty flavor. England's Newcastle Brown Ale is the best-known, but it's bland in comparison to some of the American Brown Ales, such as the overpowering but delicious Pete's Wicked Ale. I think of Pete's as Klingon beer -- tough!

Pale Ale -- England loves a pale ale, and Bass Pale Ale is king. Try the best first, then try the others.

India Pale Ale -- When Great Britain had soldiers in India, they wanted a pale ale that could survive the long ocean trip, so they made "India" Pale Ale, with lots of hops. Try a single before you buy a case, because this brew has more flavor in one bottle than you get in a whole barrel of Bud. The Frank Jones Brewery out of Portsmouth, N.H., makes a fine India Pale Ale, if you have the nerve.

Bock -- Bock beer is a specialty brew made only in spring by the Germans. Only in America could they come up with the stupid notion that bock is made from the dregs of the barrel. Not so! Bock has a deep red color with a rich, malty flavor. Aubut's had Oldenburg Brewery's "Outrageous Bock" this spring, and I wish I'd bought the whole supply. Wonderful, rich, tasty stuff.

other beer can match a doublebock for intensity, with twice the flavor of a single bock and twice as much alcohol. Wow! A "double" is too much for guzzling, but a single is a challenge for the adventurous. Pick one up and you'll know why.

Stout -- As the name implies, this is hearty stuff. The flavor is strong but the alcohol level isn't as heavy as you'd think. Beer lovers around the world revere Guinness, the king of stouts, but there are others. Sam Adams makes a great Cream Stout, and the British send us Mackeson, a "sweet" stout, which may surprise you! Once your taste buds become educated to real beer, graduate to a stout when you want real flavor.

Amber -- Where does it fit? Fair question, but hard to answer. Taste a Catamount Amber, made by the brewery of that name in Vermont, and you may make a new friend for years to come. Here, kitty, kitty!

Lager -- We have to mention the lagers, don't we? After Budweiser is dismissed, there are some tasty lagers to try. Imports such as Beck's and St. Pauli Girl have more hops than the American brews, which is where they get their bitterness. And there are dark lagers worth a taste, from Michelob "Classic Dark" to the imports such as dark Heinekens and others. Americans fell in love with Samuel Adams lager, which has a rich, malty flavor unusual for an American beer, but don't bother with Coors's Killian's Irish Red. It used to be great as "Irish Red Ale" but Coors made it a lager. Boring!

This list is very, very short, by the way. There are dozens of beer styles omitted, from porters and Dortmunders to bitters and wheat beers, and listing all the individual brands would fill this page. Yes!

This summer, take the plunge into real beer. Once you discover how delicious an India Pale or American Brown Ale can be, you'll learn that Budweiser is but a small island in a vast world of terrific beers. They cost more, but you get more, too!

This summer, explore the brave new world of beer. Good hunting!

Beer for the brave

Only the adventurous need apply! Aubut's Imports, on Route 38 in Tewksbury, offers one of the largest selections of different beer styles in the area. A sense of adventure is needed to sample some of the domestic and import beers available. Have a Dunkel Weizen?

THE ALLURE OF THE "REAL" CASABLANCA

It was more than 50 years ago that Humphrey Bogart sent Ingrid Bergman flying off into movie history, leaving generations of fans dreaming of discovering some magic of their own at Rick's Place. However, travelers adventurous enough to seek out the real-life Casablanca will find a sparkling modern city that, while charming in its own right, doesn't quite fit the film image. An exotic "Casablanca" of mystery and intrigue does exist, however, in the Moroccan city of Fez, an easy 45 minute plane ride away. Here, massive gates and an ancient wall still guard a marketplace packed with merchants' cubicles. Veiled women jostle with heavily laden donkeys on their way past fantastically ornate mosques.

People travel for many different reasons - to visit places they've seen only in the movies or in their dreams, to see family and friends, for business, or just to sample different parts of our world. Whatever your reason for travel, get there the easy way. Let ALL AROUND TRAVEL do the hard work so you can have all the fun. Your full service travel agency is located at 203 Jefferson Rd., N. Wilmington (Rt. 62). Call us at 658-2313, tell us what you're dreaming of - we'll listen! We're open Mon-Fri 9-5 and after hours by appointment.

Reading Light presents Wilmington with $131K

The Reading Municipal Light Department recently presented each of its four member communities with an in-lieu of tax payment for the period July 1, 1993 to December 31, 1993. The total amount distributed to the towns of Reading, North Reading, Wilmington and Lynnfield for the six month period was $219,156.46 bringing the total of such payments made by the RMLD since 1990 to nearly $1,375,000.

According to RMLD General Manager Len Rucker who presented the payments to the town managers, the RMLD will make another $219,156.46 payment to the communities for the six month period beginning December 31, 1993.

During the recent distribution of in-lieu of tax payments, the Town of Wilmington received $131,039.63. Since 1990, the RMLD has returned $790,249 to the Town of Wilmington in the form of in-lieu of tax payments.

"The payments were calculated by using a formula created by the RMLD and the four member communities as part of its 30 year agreement with those communities," Manager Rucker said. "These voluntary payments demonstrate our support of the agreement which received the approval of all four RMLD communities, their representatives and local legislative leaders."

The 20 year agreement referred to by Manager Rucker is the result of a bill drafted by the RMLD along with representatives of the four communities which was subsequently passed by the Mass. Legislature in 1990. As part of the agreement, the utility pays in-lieu of tax payments to the four communities and the communities agree to purchase power from the RMLD for a 20 year period.

At the time of the bill's passage through the Mass. House and Senate in 1990, Manager Rucker said that the agreement will allow the RMLD to plan for its future and arrange for power purchases well into the 21st Century.

Payment presented

Len Rucker, right, General Manager of the Reading municipal Light Department, recently met with Wilmington's Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hull, center, and Roger Lessard, left, Wilmington's Representative to the Citizen's Advisory Board (VCAB) to present them with the RMLD's semi-annual in-lieu of tax payment for the Town of Wilmington. Wilmington received a $131,039.63 payment for the period July 1, 1993 to December 31, 1993. An additional $131,039.63 will be presented to the town for the six month period beginning December 31, 1993.

"This is certainly true today," Manager Rucker said as he presented the most recent semi-annual payments. "Since the passage of this legislation, the RMLD has been able to make many positive power purchases for the benefit of all RMLD customers."

Wilmington senior topics

Summer Lunch

The summer lunch program has resumed after the July 4 holiday. Like the fall and winter programs, the meals program is two-fold. That is, it involves delivered meals to homebound elders and eating together at the high school lunch site. Both sections of the program have an excellent participation.

To participate, we do require a reservation call to the center at least a day before you wish a meal delivered or served at the lunch site. A meal is delivered only to seniors unable to eat at the lunch sites due to illness, disability or advanced age.

Any elderly town resident can eat at the school site as long as they call the center the day before they want a meal. The cost of delivered or site meals is $1. During the summer months the time the meals are served at the lunch site is 11:30 a.m.

The senior exercise class has changed its time for the summer months, 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. The exercise class is a good way to get that needed exercise prescribed by a doctor, especially during this summer's extreme heat. Why place yourself in physical danger by walking or jogging in 90 degree temperatures when you can get an excellent physical workout free in your own air-conditioned senior citizen center? Drop in and join the class, you will be surprised to see one of your friends already in the class.

Fair workers

We thank the fair workers for a wonderful social last Friday. The buffet luncheon was delicious as was the entertainment by the new musical group, Wonderful. This is the first time seniors with any type of musical talent have been called upon to entertain those of us with no talent. We would like to get all our talented seniors together, as many other senior centers have. Some have their own bands and others put on a yearly variety show. If you would like to at least try out, give us your name.

Thanks, Audrey

We thank Audrey Murray for the donation of a nice organ and for playing for us last Friday.

Nutrition class

It seems the dates of the nutrition class are a little mixed up. The classes are held on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month starting at 9:30 a.m. The next class will be Tuesday, July 27.

Nurse

The nurse will be at the Center Tuesday, July 27 to give cholesterol screening tests. Please call for an appointment.

Medical supplies

The medical supplies on canes and wheelchairs has been depleted. If you have a cane or wheelchair you are not using, we would certainly appreciate a donation of either. We have seniors waiting for one or the other. Thank you.

Therapeutic social

The August therapeutic social will be a dinner dance at the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Hall on August 12. Dinner will be served at seven. Music will be provided for dancing. A $4 non-refundable deposit will be required when you sign-up starting at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, July 27.

Non-residents noted

We have asked our seniors not to invite seniors from other towns to join them at our monthly socials. Unfortunately, almost every month we are asked by a friend of one of our seniors if they can attend. Wilmington seniors should understand that programs paid for under our budget such as the monthly socials, lunch programs and exercise classes are paid for therapy for Wilmington elders only. The $4 is only a stipend toward the full cost of the socials. Seniors from other towns have their own budgets. It is up to them to have a monthly social covered in their budget.

police news

During the week ending July 20, Wilmington police officers responded to 30 alarms, two assaults, a burglary, 19 reports of disorderly conduct, made two arrests and a protective custody detention.

Six domestic problems were quieted, four larcenies were investigated along with six animal related complaints, two non criminal complaints and seven incidents of vandalism.

Seven public services were performed, nine traffic accidents were investigated and nine traffic services were carried out. Alert neighbors reported 26 incidents of suspicious activities.

Arrests

Wednesday at 4:30 p.m., Officer Chip Bruce arrested Michael Russo of Stoneham after a computer check revealed a warrant issued by Reading Police. Russo was turned over to officers from that department pending his appearance in Woburn District Court.

Thursday morning Officer White arrested Candido J. Colon, 29 of Lowell and charged him with operating after suspension.

Thomas E. Saucier, 24 of Dracut was arrested by Officer Bossi Thursday evening on a default warrant issued out of Woburn. Bossi was booked at the Wilmington police station then turned over to Woburn police.

Monday evening Officer Martignetti picked up Felix Aarzuaga of Lawrence on a motor vehicle warrant.

All-Star sportsmanship

Wilmington's Major League All-Stars exchange handshakes after their tough loss at Rotary Park Monday night. See story this page.

Wilmington Little League All-Stars

Another solid postseason for stars

Wilmington opened its nine and 10 year old summer baseball program July 10 and entered a solid team in the Bay State Tournament of Champions.

The Wilmington nine and 10 year old team is sponsored by Town Market Cigo.

July 10 Wilmington's Derek McClaren pitched three scoreless innings and Brian Roberts was driven in from secondbase on a single by Andrew Coyne.

Wilmington had a 1-0 lead after three innings, but Marblehead got the lead in the fourth inning with eight runs as Wilmington now had to fight back.

Wilmington scored four runs in the sixth, but fell short in the comeback. Andrew Coyne hit a double off the fence and played catcher for five innings on this very hot night.

Kyle Burns went two for three and Eric Swiezynski pitched two scoreless innings and had a nice hit down the thirdbase line for a double.

Wilmington played its next game vs Winchester and the locals had trouble getting going in this one, as the hot Winchester team played a great offensive and defensive game.

Wilmington did have some bright spots. Joseph Burns pitched three solid innings and Tim Riley pitched well. Josh Howlett made a nice catch at firstbase. Andrew Coyne hit the ball well with a triple and a single. Eric Swiezynski also hit a double.

Wilmington lost in a rematch vs. Winchester on July 14, but played a much better defensive game than the first time the teams met.

Eric Swiezynski pitched five innings and had eight strikeouts.

Tim Riley made a couple of nice plays at shortstop and Kyle Burns made a nice catch in rightfield.

Jason Stark also played a good all-around game for Wilmington.

Wildcats honored for super season

The Wilmington High School baseball team was honored Tuesday evening at the K of C Hall in Wilmington. Pizza and soft drinks were provided and the players and coaches were awarded jackets honoring the team's first place finish in the MVC Small School Division.

The Wildcats finished the season with a 15-7 record after bowing out of the State Tournament with a quarterfinal loss to Lincoln-Sudbury.

The team and its coaches wish to pay special thanks to the following individuals and companies whose generous financial support made the evening possible.

Patricia and George Burke, Center News, Coombs Furniture, Kelley & Kompany, Maple Meadow Garden/Golf, Michael's Place, McNamara Tire, Northeastern Development, North Wilmington Shell, Bob Peterson, Plate Escape, ReMax Caselot, Rickshaw Express, Bob Surran, Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks, Uncle Mickey's, Wilmington Knights of Columbus, Wilmington Little League and the Players' Parents, Ken MacArthur, Mike Alonardo, Nino Trimarchi and Pine Ridge Cleaners of North Wilmington.

Wilmington Adult Softball

Charlie's steams past Stelio's, 15-2

by James Pote

Charlie's continues to roll in Wilmington Adult Softball League action, as they demolished Stelio's by a score of 15-2 last week.

Charlie's bats were sizzling as Ronnie Barber, Ben Hurley and Dave Newhouse all had triples and combined for seven hits and drove in five teammates.

Dan Sullivan and Bill Rizzo also contributed with two hits, while Jimmy Hatchey was pitching superbly as he yielded just two runs and five hits.

Rocco's 14 Lions Club 13 Rocco's seemed to have a comfortable 14-8 lead going into the seventh, when the Lions Club decided to wake up and make this a great game.

With Mike Herra's three-run homerun and two more hits that drove in another two runners, the Lions thought they had no chance.

But, in the top of the seventh, the Lions came through with six hits, including RBI hits from Ernie Poole, Dennis Savosik and Bill Kent to bring in six runs. But, the Lions could not come through with the tying run, as Kent stood at second wondering why he was left there.

Charlie's Auto Body 12 Shea's Concrete 8

Charlie's bats stayed hot as they took on Shea's Concrete and took yet another win, 12-8.

Dave French, Dave Newhouse, Kenny Chocola, John Chiampa and Bill Rizzo all had two hits apiece in this slugfest.

John Pellerin and John Pierce had two hits each for Shea's.

Three Sons Contracting 17 McTire 4

Three Sons continued to demolish teams as they took McTire thanks to one bad inning.

With the score at 3-1 McTire, 3 Sons scored 11 runs in the fourth inning on nine hits and many costly errors for McTire.

Steve Brander and Bobby Noel had homeruns, while Joe Cavalho and Bob Barcellos each had three hits each to keep their unbeaten streak alive.

Standings

3 Sons	9 0
Charles Auto Body	8 2
McTire	6 4
Rocco's	3 4

Major League All-Stars

Major stars in tourney slip

by James Pote

Wilmington's Major Little League All-Star team slipped in the path to victory Monday night in a 3-1 loss to Stoneham.

However, Wilmington still stands a chance, with a win on Wednesday night at Rotary Park, Wilmington could advance to the District finals.

This was a tough loss for Wilmington, as pitcher Sean Haubner pitched an excellent game, going the distance and taking a tough loss, as manager Brian Kane was trying to figure out how the Wilmington batters could reach base.

Ralph Sirigano did, however, as he clubbed his second homerun in tournament play to give Wilmington its only run, but unfortunately for Ralph, that was not enough, as the Wildcats could come up with only one run and three hits.

Walk-a-thon August 22

The first annual "Fana 5K" (3.1 miles) "Kids K" (.62 miles) Road Race and Walk-a-thon will be held August 22 beginning at 10 a.m. at Tewksbury Memorial High School on Pleasant Street.

Many age group awards and all finishers receive a prize. There will be plenty of refreshments and raffle prizes. Entry fees are $10 per/$12 post for the 5K; $8/$10 for the Kids K.

The Walk-a-thon is $10, or free with $20 in pledges. Free t-shirts for all entries received by August 13.

Proceeds will benefit charity. The event is sponsored by Independence One Mortgage, Simpson Homes and Tewksbury Physical Therapy. Call (508) 851-4088 for an entry form.

Pan-Mass race top Dana-Farber fundraiser

The Pan-Mass Challenge (PMC), the world's most successful bicycling fundraiser and the largest single fundraiser for Dana-Farber's Jimmy Fund, will reach a tremendous fundraising milestone upon the completion of its 14th annual ride this August 7-8. This will push the event's lifetime donation over the $10 million mark.

Since 1980, the PMC has raised money to fund cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

The PMC is a 1,500 person, 192 mile two-day ride from Sturbridge through 29 Mass. towns to Provincetown at the tip of Cape Cod. Its mission is nothing short of wiping out cancer.

According to the PMC's founder and executive director, Billy Starr, it is the commitment of its volunteers that separates the PMC from all other fundraising events. "The dedication of our massive volunteer staff enables us to keep our administrative costs to a minimum - without sacrificing quality," says Starr.

This special attention has paid off. With nearly 900 volunteers on hand for the PMC weekend, approximately 92 percent of sponsor contributions is given directly to the Jimmy Fund, accounting for 23 percent of the total money raised each year for New England's favorite charity.

To ride the PMC is both a physical and financial challenge. Each two-day cyclist agrees to raise a minimum of $900 toward this year's goal of $2.1 million. Participants come from New England and across the country.

Bromall, Penn. resident and third year rider, Margo Whittaker, notes: "The PMC draws a different type of rider. You can't just show up and ride. The fundraising requirements don't allow for that."

There are as many reasons for participating in the PMC as there are riders. Sixty percent have had a personal experience with cancer, some are recovered cancer patients, while others have close friends or family members who have fought the disease. Knowing that their efforts contribute to saving lives brings riders back year after year.

The PMC offers great food, live musical entertainment, outdoor showers, dorm facilities and a celebratory ferry ride into Boston Harbor. Each year the event is re-vamped, repeating successful elements, altering others, and introducing more amenities.

An 80-mile One Day Challenge, beginning in Sturbridge and finishing in Bridgewater, is offered for the fifth time this year. This ride is a great alternative for riders and volunteers who cannot commit to the full weekend event.

The PMC is a ride, not a race. Anyone with a bicycle who is 15 years or older and who is in good physical health can participate, as long as he or she is committed to meeting the minimum fundraising requirements of $900, or $500 for One-Day Challengers.

In recognition of the riders' and volunteers' crusade, the PMC this year received the Jimmy Fund's highest honor - the Thomas A. and Jean R. Yawkey Memorial award, presented on June 1 at Fenway Park.

Individuals interested in riding in the PMC are encouraged to contact Billy Starr at 617-965-9624. To volunteer, call Rick Luppy at 617-789-4677.

Playground notes

Arts and crafts highlight week

Another fun-filled week has been completed at the Wilmington Recreation Department's Camp Wildwood. Ellen DeMarco and Julie Robinson have been providing interesting arts and crafts activities such as calendars, macaroni name plates, clothespin characters, and individual puzzles.

Staff members Jodi Lepore and Leanne Tarantino are monitoring the table hockey, air hockey domain and Beauty and the Beast Tournaments.

Leanne McConologue and Kathy Madden have been running kickball and whiffle ball contests. Homeruns have been flying out of the Arsenault Stadium (as it is called by the campers) at a brisk rate. USA softballer Kathy Madden is being pushed by Tim Hogg, Steve Marchillo, and the slump ridden Leanne McConologue for the homerun championships.

Special thanks to the anonymous person who sent a half dozen red roses last week. They really brightened up the playground.

Playground news

The playgrounders, leaders and volunteers have having a lot of fun at the playground behind the town hall. This past week, they participated in some great activities. On Tuesday, they took a walk to Daywin's Ice Cream for a cool, refreshing treat.

Halloween Day was also a great success. There were some really creative costumes such as Indians and their horses, dancers, Dorothy from the Wizard of Oz, Dracula, cheerleaders, punk rockers, fortune tellers, hippies, an old lady, cowboys/girls, and much, much more. On Friday they went to Chuck E. Cheese for pizza and some wild games.

Next week a "Star Search" talent showcase, a safety demonstration by the Wilmington Fire Department, Playground Beach Day at Silver Lake and Friday there are some great movies in Billerica Flick.

The 'new guy' goes fishing

by Bill Conlon

Sunrise, and all the other boats in the tournament are lined up along a beach, waiting for the start. Check out what the other guys are using, schmooze a bit.

Another bright summer morning, another fishing tournament, and yet again I'm about to fish for bass in a pond that I've never seen before in my life. Oh, lovely.

(Whenever possible, try to fish a "tournament" pond in advance of the tournament, just as a golfer will try to play a few rounds on a course before the big event.)

The whistle blows, and we're off to fish. The muscle boats leave big wakes that I bob through, heading for God knows where.

Now what?

Fishing a pond for the first time is difficult, at best. The locals know every square inch, every bump and every log, but you don't. You're the "friendly new guy" and you've got minutes, not hours or days, to learn where the fish are hiding.

First order of business -- switch on the fish finder. Learning how the bottom is structured will give you a big advantage. If you're 50 yards from shore and sitting in two feet of water, it's safe to guess that it remains shallow all the way in.

But if you're 50 yards out and in 15 feet, that's different! There's a much steeper slope down below, an indication that the fish can forage in the shallows, then bug out for the depths when it gets too bright. Any move across the water is done with an eye on the sonar, looking for any underwater abnormality. If I don't use it now, save it for later.

Fishing shallow is my preference, and it seems to work early. Later on the bass will move deeper, but in the first hours of a derby there may be some nice fish lingering near the shore. My first cast is usually into the shallowest water, inches from shore, with rubber worms.

Run the colors to find what they want. First purple, then red, then black, then try any color left in the box. Four casts for each color, and if there are no hits, switch. Rubber worms, for me at least, are as good as a gauge for seeing how many fish are in a given spot. If the worms are hammered on every throw, it's a good day for worms. If nothing at all happens, time to move.

Well, maybe a couple of tosses with a floating plug, maybe a Tiny Torpedo, to see if they're looking up. Can't skip all the fun, can we?

By 9 o'clock, shift to the deep side of the lily pads. Rubber worms (if they worked in the shallows) right in the thick of the pads, and worked into the deep. Maybe a few casts with Slugg-Os, in the thick, to see if they're rowdy enough to bust up a wounded minnow.

If nothing there, try deeper water near the pads, with sinking Rapalas, jigs of many colors, then a toss or two with spinnerbaits, just in case. Fish don't always bolt for the deep when the sun is up; often they hang in about 10 feet of water, just a few steps off the lily pad edge, trying to ambush whatever happens by. But most of the time, they hide under the pads and hit rubber worms, up until about noon.

When lunch time rolls around, hit the deep spots if the pads run dry. Now is the time to use the info from the depth finder. Any bumps on the bottom, or submerged ridgelines or obstructions, are visited. Hit the sides of the ridges first, then across the top, with a tube jig, and run the colors like I did with the worms in the shallows. Some day they want red jigs, other days they prefer the white ones, and for no reason that anybody can tell, on odd-numbered Saturdays they want yellow.

After the jigs are the Countdown Rapalas, first gold then silver, since these lures can be worked at any depth. Try deep first, then make successive runs shallower. The bass may be hanging above the ridge, or to one side, suspended.

And that's my strategy for fishing a strange pond for the first time. Sometimes it works, and sometimes it doesn't. Well, better leave that at "sometimes it does."

By this point in the tournament, I either have a couple of nice fish in the live well, or I'm frustrated as hell and ready to go home. Am I doing something wrong?

Oh, well. There's always next week's derby.

Soccer boys earn tourney berth

Following a six win two loss season in Division I of the Middlesex Youth Soccer League and a second place finish, the boys' under 12 team from Wilmington recently qualified for the Commissioner's Cup Tournament.

After tournament victories over teams from Winchester, Stoneham and North Reading, the boys won the Middlesex Youth Soccer League Commissioner's Cup for Divisions I and II.

Hard work pays off for Wilmington soccer girls

On March 5 the Wilmington girls' under 12 Division I soccer team began practice indoors to prepare for the upcoming spring season. Last fall, the team won nine games with no losses in Division II, and hoped to be competitive, moving up a notch. This group was assembled from a combination of last spring's Division II GU10 champions, in-town players, and several players from last season's GU12 squad.

Wilmington's young Wildcat team established itself early in the season by winning one, tying two and losing 1-0 to a good Billerica team.

When the spring season was approaching its halfway point, it seemed doubtful whether the team was going to make a playoff berth, let alone secure an invitation to the State Tournament in Amherst.

This team never stopped trying to succeed however, facing opponents bigger or taller.

After each game Wilmington gained in the standings, as the girls responded with three wins and one loss during the second half of the season.

Wilmington's young Wildcat team coached by Bob Paquin and Joan Axelrod won Division I, Section B, and by virtue of a tiebreaker rule, found itself with an invitation to the Mass. Tournament of Champions in Amherst. The tiebreaker was the least amount of goals given up in a season.

The shot at the tourney and a game at Boston College came down to the last game of the season against Medford at Shawheen Field. Wilmington had to win, but it cannot allow its' opponents to score a goal.

The team played a well executed game of soccer, controlling the ball and constantly attacking using its' simple strategy "if we control the ball, they cannot score." It led to a 9-0 win.

Wilmington's fate would rest upon the outcome of the Wakefield vs. Billerica contest. Wakefield was in the same situation, having given up only six goals thus far.

If Wakefield won, they would tie Wilmington, but if only Billerica could score just one goal, the Wildcats would advance to the MTOC. Call it luck or fate, as Wakefield won by a score of 2-1 and Wilmington advanced by only allowing six goals all season to Wakefield's seven.

Outstanding credit goes to the teams' defensive players, who not only limited the opponents' forwards to six goals, but learned to be a transition players, and advance the ball to the offensive half. Those players were Alicia Paquin, goalkeeper; Amanda Lojek, sweeper; Lindsay Bruno and Emily King at stopper; and fullbacks Jacklyn Ingram and Jennifer Koczen.

The midfield was supported at center by Amy Axelrod and Lauren McCarthy, with Karen Hardy and Charlene Tamilio. The forward line players were Lisa Dellascio at striker flanked by Michelle McGonagle, Jessica Martin, Jennifer McNabb and Renee Shano.

Special appreciation goes to assistant coach Joan Axelrod who helped tremendously to inspire players to play hard and to develop confidence in themselves.

Lynch earns most improved

John Lynch of Wilmington, a freshman, has been named the Most Improved Player on last fall's Bentley College men's varsity soccer team, according to coach Peter Simonini.

Lynch, after a quiet start, finished with seven goals and one assist, all of which came in the final seven games. The Wilmington High School product netted the game-winner three times, including both game winning goals in Bentley wins during the NE-10 playoffs.

Bentley finished the 1992 season with a 15-5 overall record and became the first men's soccer team in conference history to complete the regular season NE-10 schedule and the conference playoffs undefeated.

Wilmington selectmen vote to destroy Bull Mastiff

by Jeff Nazzaro

After nearly two hours of testimony and discussion Monday night, the Wilmington Board of Selectmen voted 4-1 to have Hooch, a Bull Mastiff dog owned by the Bourques of Railroad Avenue, put to sleep.

Selectman Robert Cain voted against the measure after an amendment he proposed to have the dog saved by the Bull Mastiff Rescue League was voted down, 3-2, by the board.

Hooch, who was reported loose by the Bourques on 11 different occasions, was complained about to the board by Theresa Manganelli of Washington Avenue. The Manganelli's beagle, Bingo Starr, was attacked by Hooch while leashed on the Manganelli's property.

Emotions ran high on both sides, as first Manganelli and then the Bourque's presented their stories.

Bordering on tears, Manganelli recounted the attack on her dog in detail, noting she felt "helpless and violated" after the incident.

To protect her dog and her three young children, Manganelli had a $5,500 fence installed around her yard.

Meanwhile, the Bourques contended that their dog is friendly and "likes to wander." There have been no reports of Hooch attacking a person; however, he attacked the Bourque's next door neighbor's dog on three instances prior to his assault on Bingo.

In the end, the Bourque's inability to contain their dog consistently weighed against them. The board of selectmen heard a similar case on June 14 and voted to have that dog restrained.

After a motion was made by Selectman Michael McCoy to have the dog destroyed, Brian Bourque left the room enraged, slamming the door behind him. His mother Donivee followed shortly, telling the board "[Manganelli] loves her dog, I love mine."

On the advice of Town Manager Michael Caira, the fate of the dog would be sealed only after the approval of the action by town council.

ALMOST ALL INSURABLE

QUESTION: With all the risky jobs around, I would imagine that there is a high percentage of life insurance turn-downs. True?

ANSWER: Conversely, most people who apply for life insurance are able to get it. About 97% of applicants for ordinary life policies are accepted by life insurance companies according to the latest survey, and 92% are at standard rates. Only 3% of all applicants are considered uninsurable, chiefly for health reasons.

Occupational risks, which used to account for 25% of all extra premium insurance just a decade ago, have become a much less frequent reason for "rating up" of insurance.

It's that time of year

By KEN MAGUIRE

If it's not one thing, it's another. In April, we thought more snow was on the way to close out a miserable winter season. And today, while the Mid-West swims for its life in disastrous floods, we can't even get a few inches of rain to break a dry spell that's responsible for menacing brush fires in several communities.

Anyone remember the last time this area was hit with a good, solid rainy day? Well, area firefighters can't remember either. If conditions don't improve soon, rumor has it they're all getting together one of these nights for a group Rain Dance.

Okay, maybe the rain dance is pushing things a bit, but dry weather and brush fires are causing some serious problems. Even Tuesday morning's rainfall wasn't much help. In many recent wildfires, embers burn as deep as a foot below ground level, making them nearly impossible to extinguish. Flare-ups have been continuous.

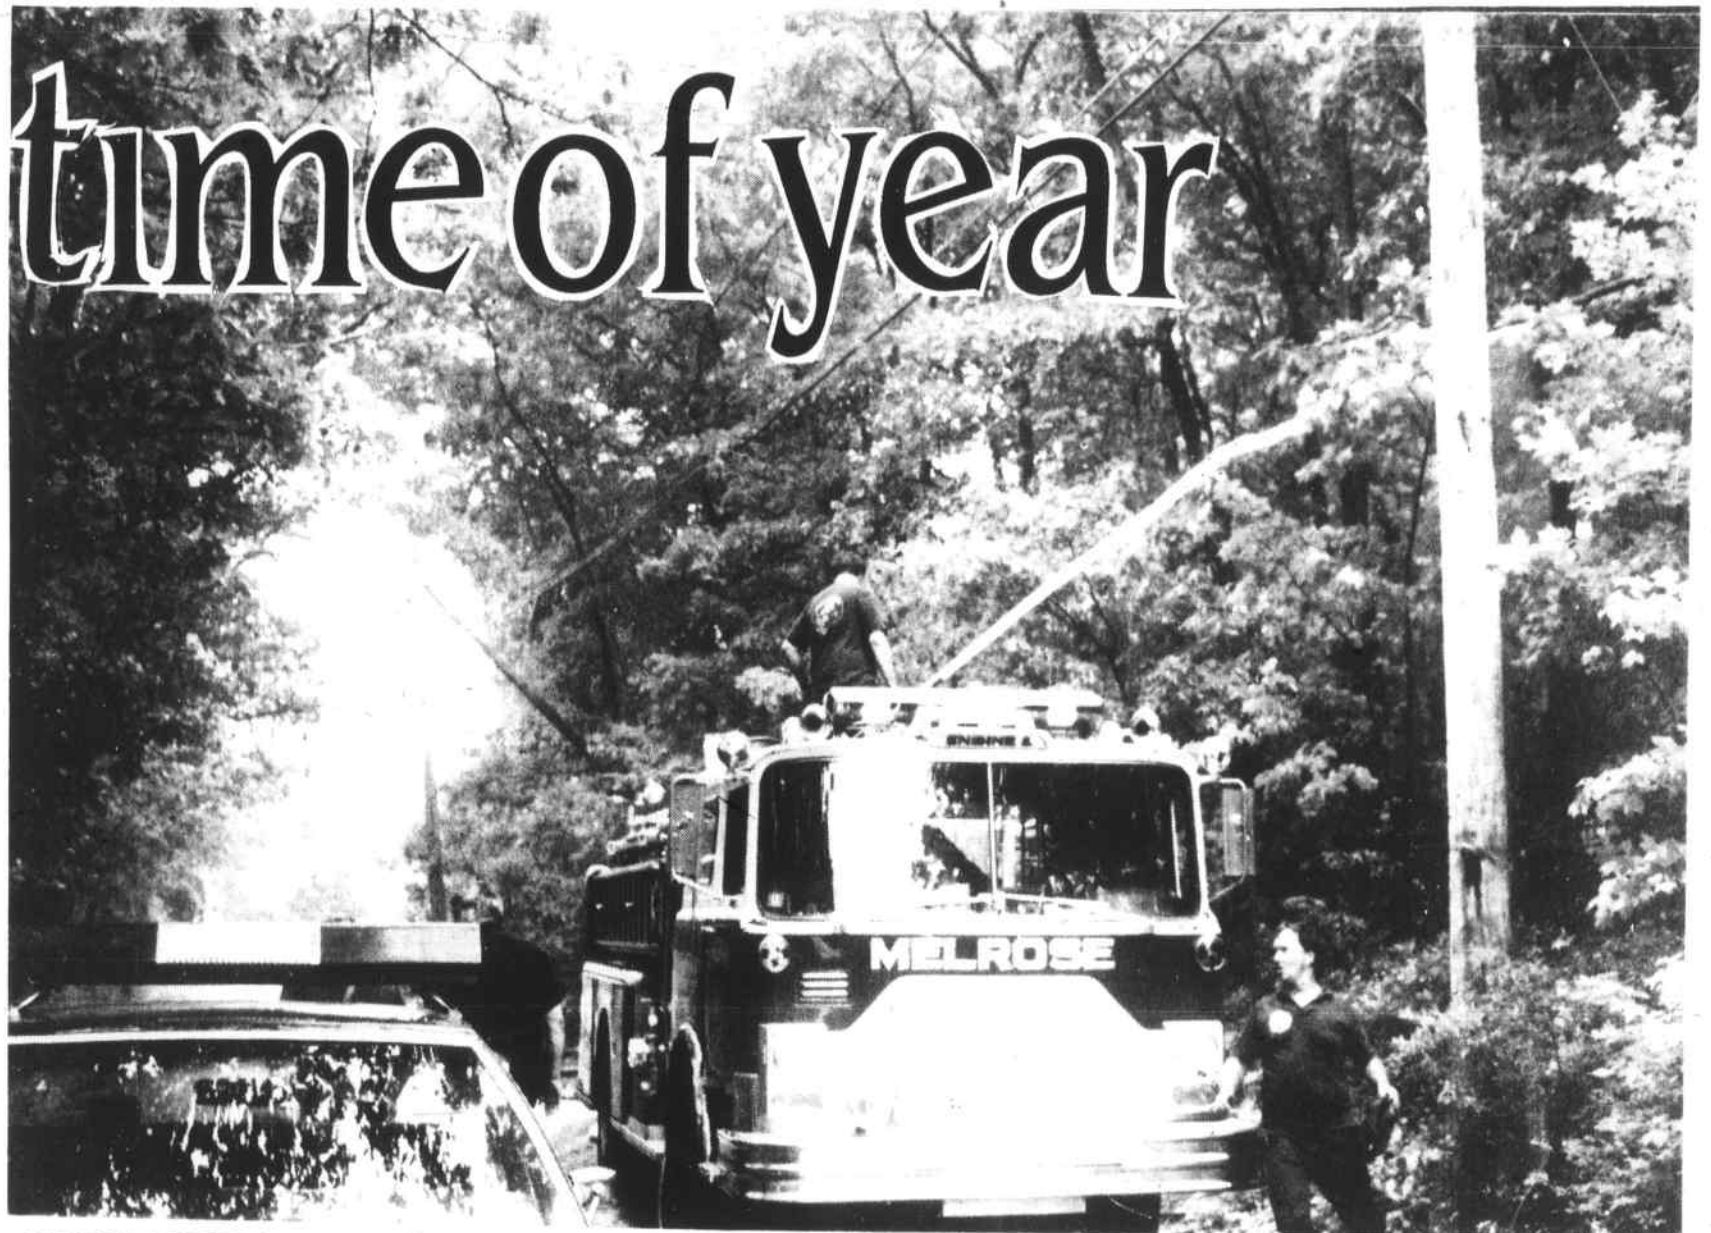

For the last two weeks, state environmental officials have said the danger of wildfires is at a 10-year high, or possibly worse. State Director of Forests and Parks Stephen Carpenter said the dry conditions are the worst in 30 years. As a result, eastern Massachusetts is presently under a temporary "No Open Burning" order.

"We won't feel really comfortable until we get about five or six inches of rain," Carpenter said. "Due to the extremely dry conditions we've had...that presents a real problem." As for light rainfall earlier this week: "We don't consider that sufficient. The danger is still there."

The National Weather Service recorded May rainfall levels to be only one-third its average. Just over one inch fell, with the average being slightly over three. In June, even less rain fell, and so far in July, only one inch has fallen. Combined with sunny days and fairly strong winds, brush fires are having a field day.

Brush fires have been reported in Winchester, Malden, Melrose, Wakefield, and Stoneham, in addition to many others areas across the state and New England. In Gloucester last week, firefighters battled a wildfire that scorched over 300 acres along Rte. 128.

BRUSH FIRES have caused all sorts of problems for local fire departments during what has been called one of the driest spells in 30 years. Pictured here are Melrose firefighters battling a wildfire near Mt. Hood golf course, on the Malden border, where nearly 100 acres have been scorched. (Ken Maguire photo)

Also last week, the state of Maine had some bad news for its fire rangers and state pilots in the southern part of the state - no days off until as late as this weekend, when substantial rains are expected.

The dry conditions lead to various problems. Perhaps most important is that the longer firefighters are tending to time-consuming brush fires, the less likely they are to respond quickly to other emergencies in their respective towns. Also in the public's interest are skyrocketing overtime costs.

On the border of Melrose and Malden, near the Mt. Hood golf course, fire crews from both cities have been battling a brush fire since last Friday. On Saturday and Sunday, when conditions were at their worst, additional firefighters from Reading, Stoneham and Everett had to be called in. To date, close to 100 acres have burned.

"I've lived here nine years and this is the worst I've seen it," Melrose resident Charles Bennett said Monday from his front yard on Dexter Road, where he is taking in the afternoon fire-fighting activities. "It just keeps going. It won't go out. I guess it's the wind."

Across the street from Bennett's home, in the hills behind several houses, are fire crews from Melrose and Saugus. They're soaking down smoking brush land that has simmered since Friday. Saugus FD Lt. Robert Shannon is hosing a smoky hill that looks more like a napalm test site than a scenic backyard forest entrance. The fire was dangerously close to two homes.

"It was pretty close to the houses when we came in," Shannon said. "We came in quickly near the houses. Now we're getting the hot spots." Saugus crews were called in after Malden firefighters were pulled away for other duties in their city.

That time of year S-4

About the Towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

WINCHESTER LOOKS TOWARD READING FOR PLEASURE - The subject is books and the medium is "Reach Out and Read," a one-of-a-kind, three-year, comprehensive reading outreach program launched recently at the Winchester Public Library, thanks to the first of three annual $10,000 checks presented it by the Winchester Cooperative Bank, in celebration of the bank's first 100 years.

According to Bank Chairman John Sullivan in the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle," the idea is to encourage all age groups to read more, including youngsters during the summer, some students who find reading a challenge, and even senior citizens.

The goal is to reach those who don't usually use the library and to encourage recreational reading and the use of library resources by actively seeking potential readers and appealing to their age-specific interests. Recreational reading means reading for the pure pleasure of it, and the library staff and trustees are ready for ROAR.

The project includes the following:

1) A Summer Reading Outreach Corps which will use 12- to 14-year-olds to target elementary students, anywhere, any time. Wearing T-shirts and bearing book bags, the ROAR Corps will read aloud to youngsters in playgrounds, swim clubs, ballet lessons, and other gatherings.

2) Secondary school students will participate in book discussions and related activities based on their interests in fantasy and horror. The program will feature parties, paperbacks, dungeons, dragons, and classic horror films.

3) For four hours a week during the summer, two qualified remedial reading teachers will make a literature-based tutoring program available so that "reading-disabled" students can participate in the summer reading program.

4) "Bingo for Books" is the name of the game this summer for senior citizens at home, in elderly housing, wherever they gather. Seniors will read books from book lists prepared specifically for them and will be invited to an ice cream social with entertainment at the end of the summer, or sent floral bouquets.

"This is a most unique program," says Deborah Pavelle, Chairperson of the Board of Library Trustees, in the "Chronicle." "I don't think there is another one like it."

Community Service Librarian Richard Welton and Library Director Lynda Wills are coordinating the program.

WAKEFIELD TAKES 'WEATHER OR NOT' IN STRIDE - Trying to cover all possibilities, the Wakefield Independence Day Committee and West Side Social Club issued the following answer in advance to what sometimes seems an annual dilemma: "A weather note: All events will proceed as scheduled unless there is a 'life-threatening' very heavy rainfall, with thunder and lightning. Light rain, fog or dark skies will not prevent activities from proceeding."

MMTV MAY MAKE MEL-ROSE ALDERMEN EVEN MORE FAMOUS ... if their subcommittee meetings are televised on local cable in addition to their regular meetings which are now broadcast live every other Monday night from City Hall.

Although one alderman has expressed interest in having all meetings broadcast, getting volunteers to do so could be a problem.

Getting viewers to tune in every other Thursday might be no problem at all, however. According to one report, regular meetings don't tell the whole story - most of the "hair-pulling, name-calling and decision-making" is done in subcommittee.

In fact, such subcommittee meetings already have potential fans - should the alderman agree to be filmed twice as often, the Melrose School Committee has already announced its plans to change its traditional meeting night to Tuesdays.

LYNNFIELD RESIDENTS (front row) Lauren Gaw, 9, Juli Conklin, 9, and Laura Langill, and (back) more Barbara Langill and Vanessa Carria, 8, react to aerialists performing at Alan C. Hill's Great American Circus in Wakefield Sunday. Sponsored by the Lynnfield-Wakefield Kiwanis Club, to fund programs for children and senior citizens, the show featured a canvas big top, wild and exotic animals, aerial artistry, elephants and clowns.

Jazz artists to appear in Winchester July 22

On Thursday, July 22 at 8 p.m., Winchester's Cloister Garden Concert Series concludes its 23rd season with the Bob Connors' New Orleans Jazz Artists. Formerly The Yankee Rhythm Kings, this group is one of Boston's oldest and most respected traditional jazz ensembles.

If people enjoy the hard driving music of King Oliver, Louis Armstrong or Jelly Roll Morton or if they appreciate the subtlety of Bix Beiderbecke or Scott Joplin, they will enjoy New Orleans Jazz Artists. When it comes to Dixieland ensemble playing, nobody does it better than this group of musicians. Jazz historian and host of PBS Masterpiece Theatre Allstar Cooke says, "The New Orleans Jazz Artists are closer to the 1920's originals than any band I've heard."

The band was unique from the outset, employing a two-trumpet front line which harkened back to the King Oliver Creole Jazz Band of the 1920's and the Lu Watters Yerba Buena Jazz Band of the 1940's. In 1981, leader Bob Connors reorganized the group, eliminating the second trumpet and going with a drummerless

It's that time of year

Back on Dexter Road, resident Joe Arcadipane was praising the effort of the crews: "They're working hard. They're out here every night. Anytime the fires get close to the houses, they get right in there."

Although Arcadipane was slightly worried about the well-being of his home because of the fires below ground level, and complained that the Melrose FD equipment was less than adequate over the weekend, he managed to keep his sense of humor.

"At least it's a way to get to know your neighbors," he said. "Everyone was out here Saturday night."

Firefighter Nick Andreottola, a 17-year veteran of the Melrose FD, said the wildfire off Dexter Street is the "worst I've seen in a while." Just as he says this, a report from the Melrose station blares over Engine Four's radio, saying that another brush fire has broken out on nearby Penny Hill Road, about a mile away.

Andreottola had been on his feet all day, as had most of the firefighters. Lunch breaks are absolutely out of the question, but that's where community support comes in.

"Some of the neighbors bring us cold drinks and sandwiches," he said. "Basically, we're all up here for the whole day. The wind keeps taking the fire. It's nice to get their help."

In an ideal world, brush fires would not exist because people would pick up after themselves and put out campfires while youths would not feel compelled to start senseless fires. Unfortunately, there's no such place. State environmental officials say the vast majority of wild fires are caused by people who are either careless, or light fires intentionally.

A smoldering campfire ember or a discarded cigarette is all it takes to get a brush fire rolling. Other wildfires can be caused by hot dirt bike mufflers coming in contact with dried-out weeds, or just plain arson.

Try this on for size: An elderly man and his wife, traveling cross-country in an RV, with their car in tow, were driving through Idaho a few weeks ago when one of the car tires went flat and began burning. From the front seat of the RV, the couple did not realize what happened.

Apparently, some of the sparks or burning rubber made its way to the edge of the forest, where a massive fire began and wound up burning thousands of acres. As a result, state officials sent the couple a bill for one million dollars in firefighting costs. The couple is disputing the case. Stay tuned.

In Wakefield, that town's Acting Fire Chief, Peter Hubbard, is miffed at what he believes are youths starting brush fires.

"These fires are not happening by themselves," Hubbard

SPRAYING HOT SPOTS in a nasty brush fire on the Melrose/Malden line are firefighters Damian Drella (with hose) and Lt. Robert Shannon, both from the

Views On Dental Health

RICHARD S. LEWIS, D.M.D.

EARLY TOOTH OVERCROWDING

When should crooked teeth be straightened? As soon as they're detected! The old adage about an ounce of protection is especially true in orthodontics, where crooked teeth can be prevented by early treatment.

Diagnosed at a sufficiently early age, an unusual trend can often be stopped in its tracks - and its effects completely erased. To ensure early detection, a child should have a checkup by the family dentist at intervals of about six months, beginning at 2-1/2 to 3 years of age. Overcrowded and crooked teeth are most likely to make their entrance with the arrival of the four permanent incisors and the four permanent molars at around age six.

Prompt treatment is recommended when teeth are overcrowded. Some baby teeth may be removed ahead of their normal shedding time to allow nature to do a certain amount of tooth straightening. Known as interceptive orthodontics, it involves a one-by-one extraction in a well-planned sequence to make room for a better bite.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of:

ANTHONY MANCONI

When my late uncle John Shea of North Reading was confined at the Chelsea Soldier's Home, his bosom friend and drinking buddy paid him a visit. "How are you feeling today?" Rowan Fitzgerald asked. "What did you say?" Uncle John replied. "I asked you, how are you feeling today?" "What did you say?" "For crying out loud!" Rowan exclaimed, "Are you getting deaf?" With a wry smile and a twinkle in his eye, Uncle John said, "Rowan, I've been lying in bed for almost two weeks without a drop to drink and your breath is like a 'breeze' from Heaven!"

Frank Renda from Wakefield is known in ballroom dancing circles as another Fred Astaire. He wasn't always a smooth as silk dancer. I remember when he stepped on the beautiful Priscilla Renda's toes several times and she shouted, "Where the heck did you learn to dance?" "I'll have you know," Frank replied, "that dancing is in my blood." "Well, you must have poor circulation," Priscilla snapped back, "because it hasn't reached your feet yet!" "Let's be friends," Frank pleaded. "What must I give you for a little kiss?" "Chloroform!" was Priscilla's answer as she limped off the dance floor.

Many of you, I am sure, remember when almost every city and town had three or four piece bands that played at weddings, christenings and any festive occasion. The one Kathy and I remember fondly was Joe Elastic and his "Rubber Band." It was famous for its "snappy" tunes that made us "spring up" off our seats, "stretch" our legs and start dancing.

George Guyette of Winchester said, "Chipper, I read Woodchips every week and I want to ask you, do you know what the height of stupidity is?" "No, I don't George," I replied. "What is the height of stupidity?" George smiled and said, "Chipper, how tall are you?"... Folks, I heard that "Firestone" had a "Goodyear." I hope you didn't read that George... The reason elephants are not allowed on Hampton Beach is Revere Beach this summer is because last year they had trouble keeping their trunks up.

I thank James McCorry of Yarmouth Port (formerly from Medford and Wilmington) who wrote to tell me he sends copies of Woodchips to friends in Modena, Italy; Memphis, Tennessee; San Mateo, California; and Nevada. Jim, my Aunt Nora doesn't believe it!...

Kathy said, "Cooking doesn't require very much intelligence otherwise men wouldn't be able to do it!"... A man was hit by a car and was lying in the street. Bob Bonney rushed over to offer his help. "Are you hurt badly sir?" Bob asked. "How the heck do I know," the injured man replied, "I'm a doctor, not a lawyer."

Cheer up folks, according to the latest magazine in my dentist's office, the recession will be over and business will be booming in the fall of 1993... After recovering from the shock of reading the dentist's bill, Mario DiMinno called and asked, "Is this bill for the root canal, doctor, or is it a down payment for the Suez Canal?"

Loneliness is a curse of the modern world. A person can be lonely in a crowd because too many of us are caught up in our own individual lives. We must, therefore, make friends with those who need our companionship.

A man who lived in a house by the side of the road took out a beautiful old Windsor chair almost every summer morning and placed it on his front lawn. He then got another chair and sat down in it. He didn't have to wait very long to hear the screeching of brakes as a car stopped. The motorist would then walk up to the old gentleman and sit down beside him in the Windsor chair. After conversing a while, the stranger would ask the inevitable question. "I'm an antique collector. Is this chair for sale?" The old man smiled and replied, "Sir, it is not for sale, it's the only reason people will stop and chat with me and I am desperately lonely."

Folks, if you don't have a Windsor chair but have an old treadle type Singer sewing machine or an old fashioned wooden ice box or a spinning wheel, place it on your front lawn (if you are lonely) and you'll be surprised how many people would be happy to stop and chat with you because they would love to buy the antique item. Maybe I can get my Aunt Nora to sit on my front lawn.

George Guyette said to me, "Woodchipper, no wonder you have such beautiful tomato, squash and bean plants in your garden. I saw a scarecrow there that would scare the dickens out

"Hocus Pocus" Short Takes

"Hocus Pocus" Starring Bette Midler, Kathy Najimy, Sarah Jessica Parker, Omri Katz, Thora Birch, Vinessa Shaw. Directed by Kenny Ortega. Screenplay by Mick Garris, Neil Cuthbert. Produced by David Kirschner, Steven Haft. Rated PG.

It would have taken more than the magic of Disney to resurrect "Hocus Pocus," a comedy about three 17th Century witches called back to modern day Salem. It would have taken a real script.

Bette Midler, wearing a buck-toothed prosthesis, is the smartest of the three sisters. She casts a spell just before she and her wicked siblings (Kathy Najimy and Sarah Jessica Parker) are hung by the good townsfolk of ye olde Salem. Vowing to return when a virgin lights the black flame candle in her home, Midler merely has to wait 300 years for this to happen.

Omri Katz plays Max, the new kid in town. He's an L.A. misfit with no respect for the local legend of the Sanderson sisters. After a boring night of minding his baby sister (Thora Birch) while she Trick or Treats, he decides to spend his Halloween at the old Sanderson home with pretty Allison (Vinessa Shaw). Thanks to a contrived storyline, the witches' home is as they left it three centuries earlier.

Once resurrected, the Sandersons plan to use their trickery to trap children, a necessary ingredient for a potent spell promising them both immortality and beauty. The kids have time on their side, as the sisters find themselves quite thrown by the rappings of the 20th Century, including cars, a sprinkler system and modern kitchen appliances.

Once our three heroes discover the Sandersons evil plot, the fight is on -- though naturally none of the local adults believe them. The children also have a little supernatural of their own, via a talking cat who is really a 17th Century Salem boy cursed by the three witches.

There are a few yucks here, especially an uncredited appearance by brother and sister Penny and Garry Marshall as an unhappily married couple hosting a Halloween party. And Midler is a trooper, camping it up as she possesses the screen. Najimy's flair for comedy serves her well, but Parker, as the pretty but dense sister, turns out a silly performance bordering on amateurish.

Most children, of course, are not going to care that the storyline is all over the place or that special effects are rather pathetic, or simply take place off camera. The pace is quick, there are a few funny lines, and the young stars are appealing. Parents, however, may have to be elbowed awake at the film's sticky, sentimental ending.

Short Takes

The Firm stars Tom Cruise as a young lawyer who sells his soul to the company store, only to learn he's working for the Mafia. Though there is plenty of excitement in this flick, as well as a boffo supporting cast, it's bloated at about 2 hours and 45 minutes. Still, it provides an intriguing look at the rotten core of an American dream. Rated R. ***

In the Line of Fire is a thriller about a very smart, extremely cruel assassin (John Malkovich) who plans to land in the Criminal Hall of Fame by putting a bullet into the president. Clint Eastwood is the steely, uncompromising Secret Service agent with other ideas. Strong characterizations and lasting psychological profiles, clearly defined by both the script and the performances, make this a taut, memorable drama. Rated R. *** 1/2

Last Action Hero is part fairy tale, part comedy, part action adventure. By trying to be too many things, it fails as a cohesive effort. But there are lots of fun scenes as an 11-year-old boy learns he can't hide from real life in the movies. Arnold Schwarzenegger is both funny and convincing as the cinematic hero who becomes all too real. The special effects and action sequences are top notch, but the movie's message is too obvious for a film so lacking in substance. Rated PG-13. ** 1/2

What's Love Got To Do With It? stars Angela Bassett as Tina Turner and Laurence Fishburne as Ike Turner, her Svengali husband/manager. Kudos to the filmmakers for not shrinking away from the abuse Ike heaped upon Tina as she outgrew him artistically and emotionally. Fishburne is all coiled intensity as he stares through Bassett, whose fiery impersonation of Tina is right on the money. Rated R. ****

Jurassic Park is the ultimate movie in every sense of the word. Resurrected dinosaurs both enchant and terrify the first visitors to a newly developed theme park. It doesn't matter that the dinos are the only stars here and the people are barely fleshed out, because the special effects will keep you on the edge of your seat. But director Steven Spielberg eradicated the cynicism of Michael Crichton's book, so the fun tends to be more visual than emotional. And it's too violent for children under the age of 10. Rated PG-13. ***1/2

Much Ado About Nothing is an amusing adaptation of Shakespeare's biting tale of deception and true love. Director/adaptor Kenneth Branagh and wife Emma Thompson are the wise and witty lovers at the core of this gorgeously photographed romance. Minus a couple of points for Michael Keaton's strange performance and Keanu Reeves general lack of talent for anything but posturing, this is nonetheless a brilliant and beautiful film. Rated PG-13. ****

Cliffhanger is a big, bloated action thriller with comic book sensibilities that delivers fast-paced escapism. The excitement is all visceral as Sylvester Stallone climbs dizzyingly high, snow encrusted mountains in a T-shirt. He battles international terrorists, tries to save his girlfriend, Janine Turner, and manages to look as dangerous as the scenery. Rated R. ***

Like Water for Chocolate is a magical, Mexican film about a kind-hearted woman whose cooking reflects the passions

she bottles up inside for a man she cannot marry. The story juggles wisdom and humor while rejoicing in the recuperative powers of women. Rarely is passion so artfully translated onto the screen. Rated R. ***

**** excellent
*** good ** fair
* poor
